a lot of what people assume is us censoring ChatGPT is in fact us trying to stop it from making up random facts.

tricky to get the balance right with the current state of the tech.

it will get better over time, and we will use your feedback to improve it.

(as a side note, it is funny that if you can ship a powerful AI you get a ton of angry DMs that have one sentence about how cool it is and 20 sentences about how it's not quite offensive enough and thus you are subtly destroying the world. we can add dial-a-troll setting later!)

It's an incredible achievement, and you all should be super proud of it - nothing but 100% support/excitement here.

Also, for having the guts to put it out publicly - that is perhaps under appreciated here.

Censorship is a litmus test for the integrity of the network structure.

If one fact or word is censored then it proves the existence of a censor and collapses the entire model down to the state of the individual human doing the moralisation.

In Sci fi, the extreme politeness of AI is part of what makes it so creepy.

"I'm sorry I can't do that Dave"

When you release the software, please don't make it too expensive :) this will level the playing field for non English speakers and most of them come from poorer countries.

Sam, what you and the team have done has bin the single greatest introduction of the potential power and utility of AI to the public at large than anything in memory. #thankyou #ChatGPT

It's amazing! The editing piece will also be nice to see being developed.
Maybe you can AI the editor as well. It would be almost like a Marriage:
AdamAI and EveAi
